- CD-BOOK KIN King, Stephen, 1947-. Cell : [a novel]. New York : Simon & Schuster, p2006.
Read by Campbell Scott. Civilization doesn't end with a bang or a whimper, it ends with a call on a cell phone. On the afternoon of October 1 what came to be known as the Pulse (a signal sent though every operating cell phone) turns all cell phones users into something savage, murderous, unthinking and on a wanton rampage. To the people (like Maine cartoonist Clayton Riddell) who avoided the technological attack, what really matters is surviving the aftermath. Before long a band of them ("normies" is how they think of themselves) have gathered on Gaiten Academy's grounds, where the headmaster and one remaining student have something awesome and terrifying to show them on the school's moonlit soccer field. Clearly there can be no escape. The only option is to take them on.
